was had over the disadvantage or otherwise of using the chemical and considerable excitement followed its detection at the city faucets. Material doubt was afterwards thrown upon the accuracy of the determination and upon what may be termed "prophetic taste" when it was noted that the presence of alum had been detected some four days before it was added to the raw water.

A large town was desperately in need of water and an excellent ground supply was located. The health officer, a physician who was not in favor of the proposed plan, sampled the water, carried the sample under his buggy seat during his professional visits in the country and in the course of a day or two forwarded it, by express, without ice packing, to the central authorities who condemned it upon the strength of the high count of bacteria without having ever visited the well.

An outbreak of typhoid fever manifestly due to transmission by flies occurred in a city during a period when certain repairs were being made to the conduit leading from the source of the public water. Outside authorities to whom the situation was referred reported the outbreak of disease as probably caused by the entrance of the repair gang into the tunnel carrying the municipal supply. A visit to the spot would have convinced the writers of the report of the impossibility of getting the said gang into the twenty-inch cast-iron pipe.

The duties of the water examiner, however, do not always limit him to use the sanitary survey to save a good water from unfair condemnation. Quite otherwise. A water of entirely satisfactory character judged from the laboratory standpoint may be rated as undesirable upon inspection of local conditions because of proposed changes in the immediate vicinity of the source.

A spring water of high quality was condemned because arrangements had been made to construct a sewer above the spring and near it. The engineer in charge was to construct a "tight sewer," but who could guarantee that it would stay tight? A glance at the tables showing the leakage of ground water into sewers should shake one's faith in the permanence of such "tightness," and sewers not tight can allow of leakage out as well as in.

Damage to water through "new construction" is very fruitful of adverse and unfair reports. Springs of unassailable purity become temporarily injured (solely from the laboratory standpoint) because of "developments" made with a view to improve the surroundings. New wells and recently "improved" springs will furnish waters likely to be condemned by laboratory standards and samples of their waters should therefore not be submitted for examination.

Finally, while it is admitted that laboratory methods of water analysis have made great strides towards perfection during recent years, they can never hope to reach such perfection as to enable the analyst to uniformly rest upon chemistry and bacteriology alone, without aid from the actual sanitary survey, and they can still less be depended upon to furnish information not on what a water is, but on what it is likely to become.

As has been noted in SCIENCE Dr. Wilhelm Waldeyer, professor of anatomy at the University of Berlin since 1883, was raised to the hereditary peerage on the occasion of his eightieth birthday on October 6. The Journal of the American Medical Association states that a bronze portrait plaque was presented to him by his present and former pupils, and a duplicate was hung in the headquarters of the Postgraduate Instruction System. He has been chairman of the central committee of this work for many years. The Leopold-Karolinische Akademie of Halle presented him with the gold Cothenius medal, and honorary memberships in various scientific and other societies poured in on him. He announced that although he was thinking of retiring from his teaching chair at the university at the close of this semester, yet he intended to keep up his other work.

Sir Frank Dyson, astronomer royal, Professor R. A. Sampson, astronomer royal for Scotland and professor of astronomy in the University of Edinburgh, and Professor H. C. Plummer, astronomer royal of Ireland and Andrews professor in the University of Dublin have been elected honorary members of the British Optical Society.

Dr. Henry Head, F.R.S., physician to the London Hospital and editor of Brain, has been added to the government committee which, under the chairmanship of Sir J. J. Thomson, president of the Royal Society, is inquiring into the position occupied by natural science in the educational system of Great Britain, especially in secondary schools and universities.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, Mrs. R. A. Proctor, widow of the astronomer Richard A. Proctor, was formally admitted as fellow of the society. Exactly 50 years ago, in November, 1866, the late Richard A. Proctor was elected to fellowship.

The University of London has awarded the Rogers prize of £100 for 1916, for an essay on "The Nature of Pyrexia and Its Relation to Microorganisms" to Dr. J. L. Jona.

The trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have awarded the George Robert White Medal of Honor for the year 1916 to William Robinson, of Gravetve Manor. Sussex, England. The medal, by John Flanagan, is of coin gold, weighs 8½ ounces and was struck at the mint of the United States, Philadelphia. This is the eighth award of this medal made by the society in recognition of eminent service in the advancement of horticulture. Previous awards have been made to Professor C. S. Sargent, of the Arnold Arboretum; Jackson T. Dawson, Victor Lemoine, of Nancy, France; Michael H. Walsh, the rose specialist of Woods Hole; Sir Harry J. Veitch, of London, and Ernest H. Wilson. William Robinson, to whom the medal is now
